The authorities are most anxious to locate Dr. Mary Campbell, who shared an osteopathic office with Dr. Cella Adams, to whom Atwood was engaged. They desired further evidence of alleged relations of the dead girl with the man whom Atwood shot.

Took Overdose of Morphine.

The girl herself, who, according to Medical Examiner McGrath, died from morphine poisoning, was said by Atwood to have denounced with her dying breath the name of Dr. Harris, alleging that he had betrayed her. Atwood left the girl's home after her death and went immediately to Harris' apartment in the Hotel Westminster. There, without warning, he shot down his fellow physician. He left the hotel and for hours watched newspaper builetins downtown detailing the attack on Harris and the hunt for himself.
